

14 December 1953

Mr. Houston:

Colonel Grogan stopped by to see you and left the following message:

He had been down to see Mr. Dulles re the history which Mr. Darling turned over to you. Mr. Dulles told him to tell you that you are responsible for its security and he does not want it to get outside of the Agency, but he has no objection to the two Assistant Historians having access to it-- now the Acting Historian, and , both in Colonel Grogan's Office. It seems that Mr. Darling never did let them look at the whole job, just piecemeal.
